Standards not met

Standard 4.3

- The pharmacy cannot show that it stores all refrigerated medicines at the correct temperature.

Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.6

- The pharmacy usually keeps the records the law requires. But its emergency supply records and entries in the controlled drug register are sometimes incomplete, and the prescriber's address recorded in the private prescription register is not always correct. This makes it harder for the pharmacy to show its records are reliable if someone raises a query.

Standard 1.7

- The pharmacy stores completed prescriptions on open shelves that people at the counter can see. It doesn't always arrange the bags in a way to ensure bag labels and prescriptions can't be read. This increases the risk that people's personal information may be seen by others who are not authorised to view it.

Standard 2.1

- The pharmacy team is often busy delivering services safely and supporting the people they care for. As a result, they sometimes don't have enough time to complete all the other tasks expected of them during the working day.
