Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.1

- Pharmacy team members were observed adhering to standard operating procedures (SOPs) relevant to their roles. However, they had not signed the most recent versions of the SOPs, making it unclear if they had received up-to-date training on these.

Standard 1.2

- Pharmacy team members discuss mistakes identified during the dispensing process but do not routinely record all of them. So they may miss opportunities to identify patterns, learn from their mistakes and improve their services.

Standard 4.2

- Daily doses of higher-risk medicines are not always labelled immediately after assembly, increasing the risk of dispensing errors.
- The pharmacy supplies some people with medicines in multi-compartment compliance packs to help them take their medicines correctly. However, descriptions of the medicines dispensed into compliance packs do not always have enough detail to allow individual medicines to be identified. So people may not have enough up-to-date information to make informed decisions about their own treatment. And changes to individual sheets listing medication details for these people are sometimes made by crossing information out or writing over it. This can make the information hard to read and may increase the risk of errors.

Standard 4.3

- The pharmacy team do not always store medicines in an organised manner. This increases the chance that the wrong medicine could be supplied by mistake.
- Pharmacy team members do not consistently check and record medicine fridge temperatures every day. This makes it difficult for them to provide assurance that medicines needing cold storage are stored properly and are safe and fit for purpose.
- The pharmacy team carried out expiry date checks, but there was no clear record of how often these were done or which medicines were included. This increased the risk that out-of-date medicines could be missed and still be available for use.
