Areas of good practice

Standard 4.1

- The pharmacy works collaboratively with other healthcare professionals to promote the services it provides so that people know about them and can access them easily.

Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.2

- Pharmacy team members discuss mistakes identified during the dispensing process but do not routinely record all of them. So they may miss opportunities to identify patterns, learn from their mistakes and improve their services.

Standard 1.6

- The pharmacy's team members keep the records they need to. But they do not check running balances of all its higher-risk medicines regularly. This could mean that mistakes might not always be identified and corrected in a timely manner.

Standard 4.2

- The pharmacy's dispensing processes are largely safe and effective but higher-risk medicines awaiting collection are not always identified. And members of the pharmacy team do not always know when they are being handed out. So they might not always be able to check that these medicines are still suitable, or give people advice about taking them.
- The pharmacy supplies some people with medicines in multi-compartment compliance packs to help them take their medicines correctly. However, patient information leaflets are not always supplied with these packs. So people may not have enough up-to-date information to make informed decisions about their own treatment.

Standard 4.3

- A few stock medicines that have been removed from their original packaging are not labelled with the medicine's batch number or expiry date, which could make it harder for the pharmacy to respond effectively to a query or safety recall.
