Areas of good practice

Standard 3.1

- The pharmacy is modern and professionally presented. It's well designed to meet the needs of the people who use it and work within it.

Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.2

- The pharmacy usually keeps a log of the mistakes its team makes. But it doesn't always review this to spot patterns or trends. This means team members may sometimes miss opportunities to learn from their mistakes.

Standard 1.6

- The pharmacy generally maintains appropriate records as required by law. However, its records for the supply of unlicensed medicinal products (specials) are not always complete. And the wrong prescriber details are sometimes recorded in the private prescription register. This could make it harder for the pharmacy to demonstrate the reliability of its records when responding to a query.

Standard 4.2

- The pharmacy keeps a log when it delivers medicines. But it doesn't keep a signed record as its written procedures requires its team to do. This could be problematic when it needs to show it has delivered the right medicine to the right person.
