Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.6

- The pharmacy keeps the necessary records showing that it is operating safely. However, some records have missing details or information, making them incomplete and less reliable. These include the responsible pharmacist record, private prescription records, records of unlicensed medicine supplies, and pharmacist consultation records.

Standard 1.7

- The pharmacy has suitable information governance procedures to make sure people's personal information is kept securely. But it could do to make sure commercially sensitive information such as account details are kept securely.

Standard 4.3

- The pharmacy usually monitors the storage temperatures of medicines that need to be kept cold to check they are in a suitable range. But it doesn't always act promptly to resolve problems that arise. This means it might not always be able to show that the medicines are kept at the correct temperature.
- The pharmacy stores its controlled drugs correctly. However, the cabinet's location and limited space make storage difficult, which could affect the safe keeping of medicines.
