Pharmacy context and inspection background

The pharmacy mainly provides private prescribing and dispensing services for weight loss and a smaller number of other treatment areas, such as skin health, erectile dysfunction and hair loss. It employs its own pharmacist prescribers. People access services via its website, www.swiftmedi.co.uk, and via remote consultations. The pharmacy does not dispense NHS prescriptions and people do not access the pharmacy's premises to obtain their medicines, and instead have their medicines delivered.

This was the first routine inspection of the pharmacy since it registered in August 2025. It started operating in January 2026.

Overall outcome: Standards met

Standards that were met with areas for improvement

Standard 1.6

- The pharmacy keeps comprehensive consultation records when people access the pharmacy's weight loss service. But for services it provides less often, its records are much less detailed. And at times lacks information to support the prescriber's justification for their decision to prescribe or not prescribe.

Standard 4.2

- The pharmacy has good systems in place to manage the risks of providing weight loss services to people and it receives photographs for other treatment areas, such as acne, to help make prescribing decisions. But for services it provides less often, such as treatment for oral thrush, it misses opportunities to ask for and record information about individual patient's clinical details to help support prescribing decisions. And for these services, it relies on people informing their usual prescriber. This increases the risks of people's regular prescriber being unaware of care and treatments being provided elsewhere and the pharmacy having incomplete information about patients in case of queries.
