Summary:

Following information the GPhC received about large quantities of orders the pharmacy had made of prescription-only medicines liable to misuse, the pharmacy was found to be supplying the medicines at a distance against prescriptions generated by a third-party website. The evidence gathered indicates systemic weaknesses in the governance arrangements for the remote supply of these medicines. The pharmacy has not sufficiently considered the associated risks of providing this service at a distance, and it does not keep the necessary records about the prescriptions it dispenses.

Conditions imposed:

1. The pharmacy must not sell or supply any prescription-only medicines against private prescriptions issued by online prescribing services. This does not apply to NHS prescriptions.
